Magnetic Leadership: Achieving the Impossible Through Employee Engagement

Great leaders have the audacious confidence to inspire game-changing vision and convince their teams they can do the “impossible.” They also have the humility necessary to stop, listen and create genuine connection so employees believe it can be done.

This high-energy, interactive keynote explores this delicate balance: including strategies for building confidence and humility within and with others-particularly during times of stress and change.

Overcoming an Imperfect Boss

It's not your boss' job to develop you, motivate you, or inspire you. That's your job. This humorous, highly interactive keynote will delve deep into the awkward, unnatural boss-subordinate relationship, and help you to navigate even the scariest scene more elegantly.

We start with the simple concept: "Your boss is just an imperfect human being, doing the best she can... just like you."

That vantage point offers much freedom and power.

This keynote is easily customizable as a workshop for managers to attend with their teams.

Karin Hurt is a leadership keynote speaker and human capital strategy consultant.

A former Verizon Wireless executive, she has over two decades of experience in sales, customer service, and HR. She helps leaders improve business results by building greater trust and connection.

Highlights from her time at Verizon include: Developing a sales team (1.5 B in Revenue) that led the Nation in store sales to the small and medium business space, and transforming customer service outsourcing (growing to 8M calls monthly) by building strong cultures which deliver “wow” customer experiences.

Karin has a BA in Communication from Wake Forest University, an MA from Towson University in Organizational Communication, and additional graduate work at the University of Maryland, where she currently teaches in the MBA and Executive Education programs.

Honors include:

Inc.'s list of 100 Great Leadership Speakers;
Top 100 Thought Leader in Trustworthy Business; and Top 10 Leadership Sites of 2014 (LinkedIn).

"Karin has been a powerful focusing agent for our organization. She was able to quickly learn our business, provide critical feedback, re-orient portions of our business strategy and help us develop a clear path for success. She is a pleasure to work with and is always on top of her game. I highly recommend working with her."

- Aaron Herrington, Founder Modera

"Karin provided an excellent kick-off to our major markets conference! Her keynote hit on all the right topics on strategic partnerships and it very much resonated with the audience. Her passion for leadership and partnership was evident to me and my colleagues."

-Jay Molino, VP Sykes Enterprises
